FOREWORD

This study began as merely a search for the ancestors of the Rev. Newitt Vick and for his descendants through a single line, but the interest and the generous response of correspondents has extended its scope to include all of his ascertainable descendants, with somewhat of his brothers and his sisters. Such other connected material as came to light incidentally in the search and in the contributions of correspondents has been included, as well as brief ancestral outlines of the spouses who married into the family where available.

From the very first, members of this migratory family left Virginia for North Carolina. By the time of the first United States census in 1790, twenty-five Vick families were established in that State. From Virginia and North Carolina they spread westward, leaving representatives in all of the southern States. By the time of the Civil War, there were enough Vick families in Mississippi to furnish thirty-two Vicks to serve with the Mississippi troops in the Confederate Army and enough in Louisiana to furnish half a dozen to the Louisiana troops. No effort has been made to follow any of these lines.

For the earlier generations, the data have been obtained from the records of the counties in which the Vicks lived and, to some extent, from published records. Continuation of the lines downward, though, would have been impossible without the assistance of many correspondents. Some of them had conducted independent research into Vick genealogy; some had extensive records of their own particular lines; and some possessed little more than the information about their own individual families. All, however, contributed to the account of the family; and my thanks are due to all. I cannot name them all, but I must express my particular obligations to Mrs. Raymond R. Russell, of San Antonio, Texas, who has been most generous with her time and with the results of her own extensive researches and who contributed, besides a great deal of miscellaneous information, almost wholly the line of Mary Tirzah Vick; to Mr. Irwin Vick Shannon, of New Orleans, Louisiana, who supplied a great deal of biographical and anecdotal material and much of the line of Lucy Watkins Vick; to Mrs. Janie Cook Selby, of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, for generous contributions of Cook, Clark, and Vick data; to Mrs. Beulah Vick Bickley, of Waterloo, Iowa, for Clarke, Cooke, and Harte studies and for some of the line of Hartwell W. Vick; to Miss Emily A. Southmayd, of El Paso, Texas, for miscellaneous material and for much of the line of Matilda Louisa Vick; and to Dr. John A. Bell, of Kirksville, Missouri, for the line of Rachael Vick.

I am also deeply indebted to Colonel William T. Carpenter, of Tuscaloosa, Alabama; to Mrs. Edward B. Everard, Mrs. W. A. Stanton, Mrs. R. A. Street, and Mrs. N. Vick Robbins, of Vicksburg, Mississippi; to Mrs. A. W. Addison, of Shreveport, Louisiana; to Mrs. John H. Bruce, of Foules, Louisiana; to Mr. Junius E. Sapp, of Monroe, Louisiana; and to many others for various contributions that have gone into this account.

VICK OF VICKSBURG

Vick is an English name, and the Vicks of Stonehouse were represented at Minchin Hampton and Berkeley in Gloucestershire at an early date. According to tradition, they may have originated in Bavaria, although the name appears among the French Huguenots in the form Vique. An Adam Vique was among the refugees who settled in Henrico County in Virginia in the later years of the seventeenth century. The line in America starts with Joseph Vick, who was in Virginia before 1675 and settled in Isle of Wight County on land that became a part of Southampton County in 1747.

1. JOSEPH¹ VICK (d. 1695), of Isle of Wight Co., Va.; m. ----, possibly a dau. of Hodges Council by his wife Lucy Hardy, and had children
2. LUCY² VICK, b. ab. 1675; d. bef. 1736 without iss.; apparently m. Thomas Parker.
3. MATTHEW² VICK.
- x4. ROBERT² VICK, d. 1735; m. Sarah ----.
- x5. RICHARD² VICK, d. 1758; m. 1st, Sarah ----; m. 2nd, Martha Woodyard, wid.
6. JOHN² VICK, of Bartle, N. C., by 1729; m. Catherine ----. In Nov. 1729, he and his wife Catherine sold 50 acres of land in Isle of Wight Co., Va., to his bro. Robert and 70 acres to William Edwards, of Isle of Wight Co.
- x7. WILLIAM² VICK, d. 1778; m. Elizabeth (?Newitt).

Joseph Vick settled in Virginia before 1675. On 22 September 1682, for the transportation of seven persons to the Colony, he was granted a tract of 320 acres of land on Chowan River in Lower Parish, Isle of Wight County, Virginia, adjoining a 320-acre tract that had been granted to Hodges Council the preceding April.

"To all and whereas & now know yee that I the sd. Sr. Henry Chicheley - Deputy Governor do Give and Grant unto Joseph Vick three hundred and twenty acres of land joining upon Hodges Council his dividend, Beginning att a white oak by Chowan River Side near ye Jordans spring, thence East three hundred and twenty Poles to an old Pine Stump, thence north seven deg: East one hundred sixty two po: to a small maple Saplin betwixt sd. Vick and Hodges Council, then West three hundred and twenty po: to Chowan river side and soe down sd. River to the first Station, The said land being due by & for ye transportation of seven persons & to have and to hold . . . dated the 22 7ber. 1682."

Joseph Vick's wife is not named in the records, but she may have been a daughter of Hodges Council (Council, Hodges Council of Virginia and Descendants, p. 20). Joseph Vick and Hodges Council occupied adjoining plantations, and the occurrence of such a marriage may be surmised from the recurrence of the name Council as a personal name among the descendants of Joseph Vick. Principally, however, it is to be inferred from the wording of a deed in which Hodges Council, on 20 December 1675, gave Joseph Vick a 50-acre parcel of land with such insistence upon Joseph Vick's daughter Lucy as the sole ultimate recipient of the land as to suggest a gift to a grandchild.

after the arrival in the colony in order for them to have had a daughter (1) . . .

"Be it known unto all men by these presents, that I, Hodges Council of ye Lower Parish of the Isle of Wight County, do firmly give and bequeath from me my heirs and administrators and assigns unto Joseph Vick of ye said Parish and County, his heirs, Exs. and Assigns, a parcell of land containing 50 acres, situated upon the branches of Beaver Dam Swamp, running up to the line of Robert Lawrence's old line, to my head line; furthermore it is agreed, if the said Joseph Vick have any other child besides this his present daughter, going by and bearing the name of Lucy, she shall after the decease of her father enjoy the said land for her and her heirs, but if the aforesaid Joseph Vick shall have any more children by this, his present wife, sonne or daughter, nevertheless the aforesaid Lucy shall enjoy ye land, but if the said Lucy shall decease without heirs, then the said land shall fall to either brother or sister, but if the said Joseph Vick and his daughter Lucy shall both decease without heirs, then the aforesaid land shall fall unto ye said Hodges Council and his heirs again, but for ye better and authoritative confirmation, I, the said Hodges Council, do bind me, my heirs or assigns to make firm unto Joseph Vick and his daughter Lucy or their heirs, the aforesaid land and to acknowledge ye said deed in open Court, to be free and voluntary, whensoever ye said Vick shall request it.

(3gd.) Hodges Council, Lucy Council."--Isle of Wight County Will and Deed Book, page 480. The deed was recorded 9 March 1681/2, and Hodges Council and Joseph Vick drew up and recorded an agreement as to boundaries on 9 August 1692.

Hodges Council had come to Virginia about 1658 and had married Lucy, daughter of John Hardy, who descended from a Yorkshire family of which a pedigree is given in the Yorkshire Visitations of 1619. The Hardy line begins with Sir John de Hardy of Wetwang, whose son Sir Richard de Hardy of Wetwang (died 1487) had a son Sir John de Hardy of Wetwang (died 1504), who married Lady Margaret (died 1496), daughter of Sir Michael de la Pole. Their son Sir John de Hardy (died 1545), Lord Mayor of London from 1510 to 1545, married Lady Mary, youngest daughter of George Stanley, Lord Strange of Knockyn, K.B., K.G., by his wife Joan le Strange, Baroness Strange and Mohun. Through the Pole, Stanley, Strange, and Mohun connections, the ancestral line leads to most of the principal baronial, noble, and royal families of England.

Sir Michael de Hardy of Wetwang (1530-1595), youngest son of Sir John and Lady Mary and heir of his elder brothers, married Lady Alice, daughter of Sir Matthew de Skelton, and their youngest son Richard Hardy (1567-1645), of Yorkshire, married Alice, daughter of Robert Wilson, also of Yorkshire. George Hardy, third son of Richard, emigrated to Virginia before 1636 and became wealthy, but he died without issue. Before 1650, he had brought to the Colony a kinsman Thomas Hardy and a nephew George Hardy, probably a son of an elder brother, who were his principal heirs. His brother John Hardy (1615-1677), fourth son of Richard and Alice, followed him to Virginia before 1656, probably about 1650, and received a grant of 1150 acres of land in Isle of Wight County for the transportation of twenty-three persons to the Colony, including himself and his wife Olive, thought to have been a Council. By his wife Olive, he had five daughters and, apparently, a son Richard, who did not survive. His daughter Lucy married Hodges Council.

The marriage of Hodges Council and Lucy Hardy must have occurred shortly after his arrival in the Colony in order for them to have had a daughter of marriageable age by 1675. It is known only that their son Hodges, Jr., was born before 1667, for in that year he was made a minor legatee in the will of Daniel Boucher. Joseph Vick and his wife both died before the elder Hodges Council, who died in 1699, leaving a will in which he made no mention of a deceased daughter or of any Vick grandchildren, although careful provision was made for contingent heirs in the cases of children then without heirs, and a minor legacy was included for his grandson Hodges Council, son of Hodges Council, Jr.

4. ROBERT² VICK (Jos¹) (d. 1735 - will 25 Oct. 1735 pro. 26 Jan. 1736), of Nottoway Parish, Isle of Wight Co., Va., m. Sarah ----- (liv. 1735) and had children, all apparently of school age in 1735.
8. ROBERT³ VICK. In 1745, he sold to his uncle Richard Vick 60 acres from the 1727 grant to his father. In 1755, he bought 100 acres in Southampton Co. from his cousin Richard Vick; and in 1758 he bought 150 acres in Southampton Co. from his uncle William Vick.
9. JOSEPH³ VICK, d. 1770; m. Margaret -----.
- x10. BENJAMIN³ VICK.
11. NATHAN³ VICK.
12. MARY³ VICK and other daus.

In 1727, Robert Vick received a grant of land on the south side of Nottoway Swamp, adjoining his brother John. In 1729, he bought 50 acres from his brother John, who had gone to Bartle, North Carolina. In his will, which his cousins Richard and Jacob Vick signed as witnesses, he left bequests to his wife and his four sons, but "to my daughters, only to my daughter Mary, I give her one shilling." He did not name the other daughters. The appraisal of his estate was filed on 28 February 1736 by his son Robert Vick.

5. RICHARD² VICK (Jos¹) (d. 1758 - will 23 July 1757 pro. 10 Aug. 1758), yeoman, of Nottoway Parish, Isle of Wight (later Southampton) Co., Va., m. 1st, bef. 1719, Sarah ----- (d. prob. ab. 1743); m. 2nd, May 1754 (mar. bond 9 May) in Southampton Co., Va., Martha Woodward, wid. By his 1st wife, he had children

13. JOSIAH³ VICK; had no issue in 1757.
14. POLLY³ VICK; unm. in 1757.
- x15. ARTHUR³ VICK, d. 1780; m. -----.
- x16. JACOB³ VICK, d. 1789; m. Patience Whitehead.
- x17. RICHARD³ VICK; m. Ann -----.
- x18. WILLIAM³ VICK, d. 1784; m. Ann Joyner.
- x19. JOSHUA³ VICK, d. 1767; m. Elizabeth -----.

Richard Vick was an extensive land owner and land dealer. He received a grant of 170 acres of land in Isle of Wight County on Bridge Branch by patent dated 26 April 1711, of which he sold 70 acres to his brother William before 1719 and the rest to Lewis Bryan in 1719, his wife Sarah relinquishing her dower right. He received a further grant of land in 1718. He lived for a time in North Carolina, where he received a grant of 290 acres in the precinct of Bertie in 1723, which he sold to Thomas Kirby in 1726. Of an earlier grant in North Carolina, he sold 135 acres to William Shuffell in 1735, by which time he had returned to Isle of Wight County, Virginia.

In January 1736, he and Thomas Parker, who had apparently married Lucy Vick, sold to Robert Johnson for 16 pounds the 50-acre parcel from Hodges Council's grant on Beaver Dam Swamp that he had given Lucy in 1675, Hardy Council appearing to acknowledge his right in the tract to Johnson. In 1742, he and his wife sold to John Bryant for 3,000 pounds of tobacco 70 acres from the grant of 1718. A month later, they sold to Captain John Darden for 15 pounds a tract of 320 acres on Ohowan River, adjoining Hodges Council, the deed reciting that this was the tract that had been granted to his father Joseph Vick in 1682. In 1743, he bought from his nephew Robert Vick for 3 pounds a parcel of 60 acres on Vicks Branch; and in 1744 he bought from Joseph Strickland, of Edgecombe County, North Carolina, for 14 pounds a tract of 238 acres on the south side of Main Blackwater Swamp in Isle of Wight County. A few months later, he bought 300 acres on the south side of Nottoway Swamp from John Gent, of Edgecombe County, North Carolina. In 1745, he sold to Abraham Artis for 4 pounds a parcel of 50 acres on Vicks Branch, part of a grant made to his brother Robert Vick in 1727, adjoining his brother John, in which transaction his son Richard made the first of a number of appearances as a witness to the land transactions of his father. Since the name of Sarah Vick does not appear in this or later transactions, it may be assumed that she died between 1742 and 1745. In 1745, Richard Vick bought from George Bell, of Edgecombe County, North Carolina, 200 acres of land on Flagg Run Swamp; and in 1746 he bought from Benjamin Carter 175 acres on Carters Branch, adjoining his brother John Vick. In 1747, he bought from Joseph and William Braswell and their wives, both named Sarah, 100 acres on Nottoway Swamp for 10 pounds.

At this stage, he began to dispose of his holdings, being now styled "of Southampton County," which had been formed in 1747 from Isle of Wight and Nansemond Counties. In 1751, he sold to John Underwood 80 acres on the south side of Nottoway River, granted him by patent of 11 June 1731, his sons Jacob and Richard signing as witnesses. In 1752, he conveyed to his son Richard for 5 shillings a tract of 150 acres of land on the north side of Cypress Swamp, half of a tract that he had received by patent; and two months later he conveyed to his son William for 5 shillings the 175-acre tract that he had bought from Benjamin Carter. The same year, he sold 6 acres on Main Nottoway Swamp to Albridgeton Jones, adjoining Jones's Mill, being land that he had bought from the Braswells. In 1753, he deeded a tract of land to his son Jacob; and in 1754 he conveyed two tracts totaling 250 acres on the north side of Cypress Swamp to his son William for 5 shillings each and a tract of 180 acres to his son Richard.

When, "being sick and weak of body," he drew up his will in 1757, he signed by mark, and Joseph Newsom was one of the witnesses. He left a plantation on the north side of Nottoway Swamp to his son Josiah, provided legacies for his wife Martha and for his daughter Polly when she became 16 years of age, and divided the remainder of his estate equally between his wife and his son Josiah, with reversion in equal shares to his other sons should Josiah die without heirs. The other sons had already received their shares.

7. WILLIAM² VICK (Jos¹) (d. 1778 - will 15 Feb. 1777 pro. 9 June 1778), of Southampton Co., Va., m. Elizabeth (?Newitt) (liv. 1777) and had children

- x20. WILLIAM³ VICK, d. 1794; m. Martha Boykin.
- x21. SIMON³ VICK; m. -----.
- 22. ISAAC³ VICK; apparently went to N. C. by 1754, but he does not appear there in the 1790 census.
- 23. ROBERT³ VICK; inherited 200 acres on the east side of Little Swamp, "where he now lives," adjoining his cousin Matthew Vick.
- 24. ELIZABETH³ VICK, liv. 1777; m., bef. 1777, ----- Pope.
- x25. MARY³ VICK, liv. 1777; m. Henry Pope.
- 26. MARTHA³ VICK, liv. 1777; m., bef. 1777, Simon Barrett.

The parentage of Elizabeth, wife of William Vick, does not appear. A belief current among her descendants that she was a Newitt is based in large part upon the recurrence of that name as a personal name among those descendants. She may have been a sister or, more likely, a niece of William Newitt (died 1713) and his wife Elizabeth (died 1719). They were the parents of two daughters: Elizabeth, who married firstly, ----- Edwards (died by 1710) and secondly, before 1717, ----- Price, and Frances, who married Edward Drew (died 1745). Among several Edwards and Drew grandchildren, William Edwards purchased land in 1729 from John Vick, of Barto, North Carolina; witnessed a transfer of land from John Vick to his brother Robert Vick in 1729; and died before 1751.

Like his brothers, William Vick was a land owner. Before 1719, he had purchased 70 acres of land on Bridge Branch, Isle of Wight County, from his brother Richard; and he was granted 300 acres on the north side of Meherrin River in Southampton County by Governor Dinwiddie in 1755.

"George the second & To all Know ye that for divers good causes & considerations, but more especially for and in consideration of the sum of Thirty shillings, of good & lawful money for our use, paid to our Receiver General of our Revenue in this our colony & Dominion of Virginia, We have Given Granted and confirmed & by these presents for us our Heirs and Successors, Do Give, Grant and confirm unto William Vick one certain Tract or Parcel of Land containing Three hundred Acres lying & being in the County of Southampton on the North side (of) Meherrin River, and bounded as followeth to wit, Beginning at a pine (on) a corner of the said Vicks other Land Thence by his old line North fifty Degrees West one hundred and seventy eight Poles to a Pine, Then South Eighty five Degrees West seventy eight Poles to a Pine on Samuel Davis's line, Thence by the said Davis's line South West by South eighty-four Poles to a Pine, Then South fifteen Degrees West Thirty Poles to a Pine in the Stoney Branch, Then South forty two Degrees West eighteen Poles to a Poplar (on) a Corner of Andrew McNeal's Land by the Side of the Stoney Branch, Thence by the said McNeals South thirty Degrees West forty eight Poles to a Pine, Then South East thirty six Poles crossing the Stoney Branch to a pine, Then South eighty five Degrees East twelve poles to a red oak in Samuel Davis's line aforesaid, Thence by the said Davis's line North thirty five Degrees East forty eight poles to a pine and South fifty degrees East one hundred & twenty poles . . ." Signed 10 September 1755 by "our Trusty and well beloved Robert Dinwiddie our Lieutenant Governor and commander in chief of our said Colony & Dominion at Williamsburg under the seal of our said colony."

In 1758, William Vick conveyed 150 acres of land to his son Robert; and, according to his will, he at some time gave some land to his son-in-law Simon Barrett. When, "being through age weak of body," he drew up his will in 1777, his sons Simon and Robert were named executors and Jacob and Matthew Vick and Louis Bryant signed as witnesses. He gave his wife Elizabeth the use of the estate during her lifetime. To son Simon, he left a plantation of 240 acres, a tract of 100 acres on the east side of Little Swamp, adjoining Epaphroditus Williams, a parcel of 70 acres, being "part of a tract I gave to Simon Baret," and one negro. To son Robert, he left 200 acres adjoining the west side of Little Swamp, "where he now lives, adjoining Matthew Vick, Davis Bryant and Thomas Vick, one negro, and ten pounds in money or "half my distillery utensils." Granddaughter Rebecah Pope was to receive 100 acres of land adjoining Ash Branch, William Vick, William Fowler, Simon Barrett, and the Fish Pond, her mother Mary Pope having the use of the land during her life. Son William received five shillings. After his wife's death, all the remainder of the estate was to be equally divided among "my aforesaid children, viz.; Simon Vick, Robert Vick, Isaac Vick, Elizabeth Pope, Mary Pope, and Martha Baret." The inventory, filed 1 October 1778, showed a value of £743 9s. 6d. (Southampton County Will Book 3, page 244.)

9. JOSEPH³ VICK (Robt² Jos¹) (d. 1770 - will 2 Mar. 1769 pro. 14 June 1770), of Southampton Co., Va., m. Margaret ----- (d. bef. 1769) and had children

In 1724, Joseph Vick received a grant of 80 acres of land on Nottoway River. In 1740, he bought 270 acres on the south side of Blackwater Swamp from William Crumpler for 12 pounds 5 shillings. In 1747, he and his wife Margaret conveyed 175 acres in Southampton County to their son Matthew. In his will, Joseph Vick left 4 cattle to his daughter Priscilla and 2 to his daughter Margaret, and then directed that the remainder of his estate, including six negroes, be sold and divided among "my seven children," of whom he named only six in his will.

10. BENJAMIN³ VICK or ROBERT³ VICK or NATHAN³ VICK (Robt² Jos¹) was, most likely, the father of

x34. JOHN⁴ VICK, d. 1789.

15. ARTHUR³ VICK (Rich² Jos¹) (d. 1780 - will 9 Apr. 1777 pro. 14 Dec. 1780), of Southampton Co., Va., m. ----- (d. bef. 1777) and had children

In 1747, Richard Vick bought for 6 pounds a tract of 100 acres on Little Swamp in Southampton County from Samuel and Sarah Davis. From his father, he received a tract of 150 acres on the north side of Cypress Swamp in 1752 and an additional tract of 160 acres in 1754. In 1753, he and his wife Ann sold to his cousin Robert Vick for 9 pounds the 100 acres that he had acquired from Samuel Davis. In 1773, he sold 100 acres to Benjamin Worrell; and in 1774 he sold 300 acres to Matthew Vick.

William Vick's will named John Chitty and sons Lewis and Pilgrim as executors, and it was witnessed by John Jackson, Burwell Vick, and Burwell Vick's sisters Patience and Dorcas, who signed by mark. In his will, he left plantations to each of his sons and then provided for his wife.

"... I lend to my loving wife, Anne Vick, such a reasonable part of my Estate as she and my two eldest sons shall think sufficient for her support during her widowhood and after her marriage or decease, I desire that it may be divided between my nine children . . .

"My will and desire is that the remainder of my Estate should be divided thus that what-soever part of my children is living with me at my decease, may have double the portion those have who are settled or acting for themselves, does to them and their heirs forever." Martha, wife of William Vick, is named in the records only in two entries made by her grandson John Wesley Vick in his Bible, wherein he names her Boykin. Another grandson, Col. Anthony Durden, named his daughter Martha Boykin Durden. A belief current among some of her descendants that she was a Burwell stems mainly from the recurrence of that name as a personal name among her descendants and partly, according to Mrs. Robert Selby, a descendant of Foster Cook, from the fact that the Hon. Armistead Burwell, law partner of her father Judge Henry Felix Cook, spoke of the Rev. Newit Vick as a kinsman. Burwell, it should be noted, was a common personal name in the Boykin family, as well as in other families of Virginia, and the relationship between Armistead Burwell and Newit Vick seems to have come through a Burwell-Boykin marriage.

The first of the Boykins was Edward Boykin, who came to Virginia from Carnarvonshire, Wales, with his wife Ann and settled in Isle of Wight County on a large tract of land granted him by Lord Howard. He lived to be an old man (will 4 Jan. 1725/6 pro. 24 Feb. 1728/9). In his will, he provided legacies for his wife Ann, who died about 1728, and his son John. At this time, there were a number of Boykins in the area. Edward Boykin, Jr., filed the estate account of the elder Edward Boykin on 27 March 1731; William Boykin, who died in 1732, mentioned in his will land that he had bought from his brother Thomas Boykin; Ralph Vickers, who died in 1747, mentioned in his will land that he had bought from Benjamin Boykin; and Francis Boykin, a son of John Boykin, had gone to North Carolina. These seem to have been sons of John Boykin; and Burwell Boykin (1741-1817) and Byus Boykin (1747-1812), who were born in Southampton County, Virginia, and removed later to North Carolina, were probably grandsons.

John Boykin, son of Edward, appears to have married a daughter of Major Francis Burwell. He died intestate in 1729 (estate inventory filed 5 May 1729 and appraisal recorded 23 February 1729/30) and his children are not of record, but William Boykin, who died as a young man in 1732 (will 19 June 1730 proved 25 September 1732) was apparently his son. William Boykin married, as her first husband, Margaret, daughter of Ralph Vickers, and had son Simon, who eventually inherited the plantation left for his mother's use and who was on the list of taxpayers of Southampton County in 1782; son William, who inherited a plantation of 240 acres at Roanoke, perhaps the William Boykin (died 1789) whose daughter Patience married, as his first wife, William Whitehead; son John, who inherited the home plantation of 140 acres of land that William Boykin had bought from his brother Thomas; son Thomas, who inherited a plantation of 180 acres and some land on Tucker's Swamp; and daughter Martha Boykin, who inherited twenty pounds and who must have been the Martha Boykin who married Thomas Vick. His widow Margaret, who was left the use of a plantation, married secondly, by 1735, Thomas Vaughan, to whom William Boykin's estate account was transferred 23 October 1735 as husband of the executrix.

Ralph Vickers, of Isle of Wight County, Virginia, who had but one child, died about the end of 1747 (will 10 February 1741/2 proved 14 January 1747/8). He left his estate to his grandsons Simon and Thomas Boykin and his granddaughter Martha Boykin. He left to his "Daughter Margaret Vaughan the wife of Thomas Vaughan, 1 shilling Current Money, it being all that I do give to her and I do hereby bar the said Thomas Vaughan from any right or claim to any part of my Estate and further my will is that my Daughter Margaret have liberty to live on the Plantation that I bought of Benjamin Boykin as long as she shall see fit." Thus, Martha Boykin appears to have been little more than an infant in arms when her father drew up his will in 1731, and she was therefore of an age to have been the Martha Boykin who married William Vick, of a nearby plantation. The names she gave her sons are suggestive: Thomas, the name of her uncle and her brother; Burwell, apparently the family name of her grandmother; William, the name of her father and her husband; and Newit, apparently the family name of her husband's mother.

The first of the Burwells to come to America was Major Lewis Burwell, son of Edward Burwell, of Harlington, county Bedford, England, and his wife Dorothy, daughter of William Dedell, of Catesworth, county Huntingdon, England. Lewis Burwell was born about 1621, came to Virginia in 1640, and settled at Fairfield, Gloucester County, where he died 19 November 1653. He married, in 1645, as her first husband, Lucy (died 1676), only daughter of Capt. Robert Higginson, and had a son Major Lewis Burwell, Jr., of Fairfield, Gloucester County, and Kings Creek, York County, who died 19 December 1710. He married firstly, Abigail (1656-1692), daughter of Anthony Smith, of Colchester, England, tanner, by his wife Martha, daughter of Rev. James Bacon, Rector of Burgate, Suffolk, and niece and heiress of the Hon. Nathaniel Bacon, President of the Council of Virginia, who owned a large estate in Isle of Wight County on Warascoyack Bay, which became, and is still called, Burwell's Bay. Around 1700, he bought from Mrs. Silvester Hill, daughter of Edward Bennett, Bennett's Plantation, located at the Rock Wharf, or "The Rocks," in Isle of Wight County. He had a large family, and his eldest son Nathaniel, Nathaniel's son Robert, and Robert's son Nathaniel lived on the estate on Burwell's Bay.

The first Major Lewis Burwell brought to the Colony at an early date a number of immigrants, including William and Francis Burwell, who were of York County by 1648. They were undoubtedly kinsmen and probably nephews. Francis Burwell (called "ffra" in the records) became Major Francis Burwell, one of the military officers of Gloucester County in 1680. Of him, the Virginia Magazine of History and Biography for 1912 (Vol. 60, page 196) says: "There is strong - but not convincing - evidence that his daughter married John Boykin, of Isle of Wight County, who died intestate and whose inventory was filed May 5, 1729."

By 1782, William Vick had become the owner of 706 acres of land, and in that year, according to page 13 of the War Tax Book of St. Luke's Parish, he paid a war tax in tobacco, apparently paying 764 pounds. William Vick, son of Joshua, also paid a tobacco tax and appears to be the William who paid 329 pounds. In 1784, William Vick conveyed 200 acres to his son Burwell; and on his death 200 acres went to his son William and 206 acres to his son Newit. The tax lists of Southampton County for 1783 show him then possessing 23 slaves, which number increased before his death, although the number shown on successive tax lists decreased as he gave, or at least loaned, slaves to his children.

"IN THE NAME OF GOD AMEN. In 1767, John Vick bought from Henry Brewer for 15 pounds a message plantation and tract of land on the north side of Beaver Pond Creek in Brunswick County, Virginia, totaling 382 acres. In 1780, he sold this tract to his son Howell for 100 pounds, his son John signing as a witness. He appears on a list of persons who gave aid in the American Revolution, according to a court order in Brunswick County, 23 April 1782. In 1784, he and his son John were witnesses to a purchase of land by his son Howell. He named as his executors his sons John and Howell, and his son John signed as a witness. From the will of his daughter Sarah Vick, it would appear that Henrietta married a Woods and Edith a Faugason. Also, since the children of Howell Vick are accounted for, Roland, Wilson, and Ritta Vick must have been children of John Vick.

William Vick appears on the War Tax Book of St. Luke's Parish, Southampton Co., Va., as paying a tobacco tax in 1782, being apparently the William Vick who paid 329 pounds of tobacco. In his will, he named Burwell Vick as his executor.

55. THOMAS⁴ VICK (Wm³ Wm² Jos¹) (b. 2 Oct. 1750 in Southampton Co., Va.; d. bef. 1833 in Warren Co., Miss.) m. Martha (liv. 1820), dau. of John Boykin, of Nottoway Parish, Southampton Co., Va., and had sons

79. JOHN⁵ VICK, d. unm. 1836 (wills 6 Dec. 1833 and 17 June 1835 pro. Sep. 1836) in Warren Co., Miss. He was present at his father's purchase of land in Jefferson Co., Miss., in 1807 and again at its sale in 1817, signing the deed on both occasions as a witness. After leaving Jefferson Co. in 1817, he acquired a plantation of some 1100 acres in Warren Co., Miss., about 8 miles from the site of Vicksburg. He was a member of the Grand Jury empaneled in Warren Co. in Sep. 1823. In 1833, he drew up a will in which he bequeathed to "my Brother Burwell a sufficiency to support him decently and comfortably, if his own Estate should not be sufficient for the same the amount of insufficiency of his own resources for the purpose of his own support to be ascertained and to be paid . . . to such person as my Executor may employ to feed, clothe, and otherwise provide for said brother." The remainder of the estate was left to "esteemed Friend and Relation J. Wesley Vick," who was named executor. In 1836, he drew up another will in which he made a few specific bequests, provided for the emancipation of a number of slaves (which provision was later held invalid, whereupon the slaves became the subject of court action to determine ownership), and placed the remainder of the estate under the control and management of J. Wesley Vick for "the use and benefit" of his brother Burwell, with J. Wesley Vick inheriting upon the death of Burwell. His personal estate, appraised at approximately $33,000, included 36 slaves worth $28,000. After John Vick's death, John Wesley Vick occupied the plantation for some time, probably until the death of Burwell Vick.

80. BURWELL⁵ VICK, liv. unm. 1836. His death appears not to be of record. In his later years, he was under the guardianship of Hudge McDaniel, and, because of his incompetency, he probably had no estate calling for probate action. His brothers' estate had already passed under the control of John Wesley Vick, the ultimate heir. It is likely that he was buried in the private plantation burial plot, together with his parents and his brother John. A current local story says that John Wesley Vick removed the body of John Vick from the plantation to a cemetery in Vicksburg, where it lies in an unmarked grave. This may have occurred either when Burwell died or when John Wesley Vick was preparing to dispose of the property after Burwell's death, and it is not improbable that all of the bodies were likewise moved at the same time.

Thomas Vick, familiarly known as "Uncle Tommy," removed from Virginia to Georgia before 1794 and thence, by 1802, to Mississippi Territory, where he and his son John signed, in successive signatures, a petition dated 25 August 1802 wherein citizens of the Territory petitioned Congress, among other requests, to open a Land Office in the Territory. By deed of 16 February 1807, witnessed by John Vick and W. Burch, he purchased from Abraham and Patsey (Cox) Mays for $500 a tract of 200 acres of land in Jefferson County, adjoining the plantation of his brother Newit Vick, described as lying on the South Fork of Coles Creek but actually on a branch of the stream now called the South Fork. This land was a part of a grant of 640 acres that had been made to Abraham Mays and confirmed to him by Certificate No. B 48 from the Land Office. After ten years here, Thomas Vick, probably feeling his age and wishing to be closer to his brothers Burwell and Newit, sold this land on 17 July 1817 to James Dunbar for $1000, his wife Martha relinquishing her dower right and John Vick and John Waymuth signing as witnesses.

"This Indenture made the 16th day of February in the year of our Lord 1807 between Abraham Mays and Patsy his wife of the one part and Thomas Vick of same place of the other part Witnesseth that the said Abraham and Patsey for and in consideration of $300.00 in hand paid . . . doth grant bargain and sell . . . unto the said Thomas Vick . . . a certain tract or parcel of land, containing 200 Acres lying and being in the County & Territory aforesaid on the waters of Coles Creek and bounded as follows: . . . thence East 15.50 on Newit Vicks line to a Stake . . . as will more fully appear by a plat of the same . . . to have and to hold all and singular the said premises to him the said Thomas Vick his heirs and assigns for ever . . ."

"This Indenture made this seventeenth day of July in the Year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventeen between Thomas Vick of Jefferson County in the Mississippi of the One part and James Dunbar of the County and Territory of the other part, Witnesseth that the said Thomas Vick for and in consideration of the sum of one thousand dollars current money of the United States to him in hand paid by the said James Dunbar . . . doth grant bargain sell Alien and Enfeoff and confirm unto the said James Dunbar his heirs and assigns all that tract or parcel of Land containing two hundred acres be the same more or less situate lying and being in the County and Territory aforesaid on the Waters of the South Fork of Coles Creek bounded as follows, to wit: . . . the same being a part of a tract of six hundred and forty Acres of land Granted to Abram Mays, of which said tract two hundred Acres were conveyed by Abram Mays to Thomas Vick by Deed bearing date the sixteenth day of February in the year one thousand eight hundred and seven . . ."

"Isaac Dunbar (J.P.)"

Being 67 years of age at the time of the sale of his plantation, Thomas Vick seems to have turned his assets over to his son John for the purpose of buying a plantation in Warren County, for he does not appear as a land owner in that County, although he does appear in the Mississippi census of 1820 as the head of a family of 1 male over 45, 1 female over 45, and 2 males between 26 and 45. He lived to a good old age, but no record of his death has been found. Probably he, too, left no estate requiring probate action. John Vick's will of 1833 contains no intimation that either his father or his mother was then living. Most likely, both had died some time before and had been buried in a family burial plot on the plantation.

Martha, wife of Thomas Vick, is named in her father's will. John Boykin, of Nottoway Parish, Southampton County, Virginia, drew up his will on 9 April 1795 and provided legacies for daughter Cherry, wife of Robert Ely; sons Matthew, John, Joel, and Daniel Boykin; daughter Patience and Elizabeth Boykin, "daughter Martha Vick, wife of Thomas Vick"; daughter Ava, wife of William Branch; daughter Keziah Boykin; daughter Sarah, wife of Arthur Sherard (married 10 November 1791); and daughter Ely Boykin. Son John was likely the John Boykin who married Dorcas Vick, sister of Thomas Vick.

Burwell Vick removed from Virginia before 1789 to the Hillshoro District in Wake County, North Carolina, being called "of Wake County" in that year when he sold to his brother Newit Vick, of Southampton County, Virginia, a tract of 300 acres of land in Southampton County, known as the Burwell Tract, adjoining land of their aunt Mary Pope, with William Vick, Senior, and Giles Vick signing as witnesses. The United States census of 1790 shows him in Wake County. He removed to Mississippi Territory at about the same time as his brother Newit or shortly before, perhaps with his brother Thomas, and he was one of the Justices of the Quorum for Adams County in 1810. About 1812, he followed Foster Cook to Open Woods in Warren County, where Foster Cook had filed on several sections of land for the various Cook and Vick families. The Mississippi census of 1820 shows only him and his wife then in the family.

In 1825, he received a grant, signed by President John Quincy Adams, of 79 acres of land in the "district of Choctaw, State of Mississippi." On 25 October 1830, he and his son Gray J. made bond before John Lane, Judge of the Orphans' Court, in the sum of $15,000 for the performance of Gray J. Vick as executor of the will of his brother Willis B. Vick. Burwell Vick's estate, which was administered by Col. Anthony Durden, who was also trustee for Henry W. Vick, included some twenty slaves appraised by Charles Searles and R. D. Coleman at $6,051, the odd dollar being the value placed upon one Mil-lay, aged 75 years. The most valuable of the slaves were George, Bill, Tom, and Wilkinson, appraised at $1,300 each. Burwell Vick's descendants became large land owners at Panther Run and Nitta Yuma, Mississippi.

106. GEN. WILLIAM⁵ VICK, b. 22 Dec. 1807 in Jefferson Co., Miss.; d. unm. Saturday evening, 24 Dec. 1859 on his plantation in Bolivar Co., Miss. Amiable, kindly, and generous, he was well-liked, and his home in Vicksburg, supervised by his sister Martha, was always a center of abounding hospitality. When his sister Matilda died in 1836, he took her three surviving children into his home, the youngest being but a few months of age. When his sister Mary died a few months later, he added her three surviving children to his household. Thus, the six McCray and Henderson children were raised under the tutelage of their aunt Martha. William Vick moved to his plantation on Lake Bolivar in Bolivar County, Miss., about 1847, where his nieces and nephews, as well as the other relatives, visited him frequently and where his home became the gathering place for the young people of the county. His niece Emily Henderson McGehee, in a letter to her brother Frank at Princeton College, in the spring of 1849, a few months before her death, wrote: "Uncle Wm. I believe is the kindest person in the world. We have every reason to love him as a father."

A States Right Whig of the strictest sect, he was elected to represent Warren County in the State Legislature in 1833, at the age of 25, but he did not seek re-election at the end of his term. Active in business, he expanded greatly. In 1841, his affairs having become complex, he turned his entire holdings into a trust fund under the control of his brother Hewitt H. Vick or of his brother John Wesley Vick whenever Hewitt might be incapacitated or absent. His assets included his 2,000-acre plantation in Bolivar County, with about 150 negroes and much stock, his home and some slaves in Vicksburg, a whole or a half interest in a considerable number of lots and parcels of land in and around Vicksburg, amounting to about a thousand acres, about $40,000 in court judgments and promissory notes, and various miscellaneous items of property. His liabilities included three mortgages and a deed of trust, $13,500 due his sister Emily and the estate of John Henderson, a note for approximately $2,500, and a long list of individual debts. Hewitt Vick's function was to pay the operating costs of the plantations and negroes, next to pay off the mortgages, deed of trust, and notes, and finally to settle the individual debts.

In 1851, Gen Vick was elected by an almost unanimous vote to represent Bolivar County in the Convention that assembled in November of that year. He was elected as a Union man and, like most of the people of the State, he felt that the adoption of the Compromise measures of 1850 was no just cause for resistance or secession, although, as an ultra-States Righter, he did not agree with the principles of the proclamation. His obituary notice said: ". . . upon the long roll of the good, who have died all too soon, the name of Gen. Wm. Vick is entitled to a conspicuous and enduring position."

The Rev. Newit Vick is listed in the Second and Fourth Minutes of the Methodist Church in America, and he was a Junior Preacher in Greenville County, Virginia, with the Rev. ----- O'Kelley as Senior Preacher. Both were Circuit Riders, and, although no mention is made of ordination, Newit Vick must have been accepted by some Conference to have been a Junior Preacher and Circuit Rider. His first name is variously spelled. In his father's will and in his earlier land transactions, it appears as Newit or, on occasion, as Newitt. In his later years, it was often spelled Newet, and this is the form that appears on his tombstone.

Elizabeth, wife of Newit Vick, was one of three Clark sisters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Sylviah, whose parentage does not appear. Mary Clark married Henry Cook, and Sylviah Clark married Henry's brother Foster Cook, whose son was the Foster Cook, Jr., who accompanied the Vicks to Mississippi Territory. The sisters may have descended from John Clark, who settled in Virginia by 1620, ancestor of Gen. George Rogers Clark and of Gen. Jonathan Clark, grandfather of the wife of Henry William Vick; or they may have descended from Richard Clarke, of Elizabethtown, New Jersey, about 1673, ancestor of Abraham Clarke, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and of Dr. Pleasant Harte Cook, third husband of Mary Elizabeth Vick. A Clark family that lived near the Vicks in Virginia was that of Samuel Clark, of St. Andrews Parish, Brunswick County, Virginia, who married Elizabeth ----- and died in 1737 (will 12 June 1735 proved 5 March 1736/7), and who could possibly have been the Samuel Clarke who was the eldest son of Samuel Clarke (died 1716), fourth son of Richard Clarke (died 1697), of Elizabethtown, New Jersey. This Samuel Clark had daughters Mary, who married a Cook; Ann, who married a Brown; and Elizabeth, who married a Peebles. His sons were Joshua; Henry, who died in 1736; and Samuel, whose children have not been determined. Son Joshua died in 1775-6 (will 27 November 1774 proved 22 January 1776), leaving sons Peter, Robert (died 1774), Henry, Simon (died before 1775), and Nathaniel. The children of Robert and Nathaniel are given, as well as a son of Simon, but the children of Peter and Henry have not been identified. However, the most likely immediate ancestor would seem to be William Clark, of Southampton County, Virginia, who died in 1797 and was survived by his wife Sarah. At least his proximity to the Vicks and the fact that Elizabeth Clark Vick named her first daughter Sarah Clarke Vick are suggestive.

The Cooks who were associated with the Vicks in Mississippi descended from William Cook, of Surry County, Virginia, who was probably a son of William and Elizabeth Cook, of Surry County, and who died about 1740. By his wife Elizabeth, he had three sons and seven daughters, of whom the eldest son William (died about 1764) married Elizabeth (born about 1716 and died after 1764), daughter of Colonel William Ryves by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Benjamin Foster, and had James, Thomas, Foster, Sarah, Henry, Hannah, and William. Their third son Foster Cook (born in 1746 and died in 1816 in Greenville County, Virginia) married Sylviah Clark, sister of Elizabeth and Mary Clark, and had Edwin, Foster, Nancy Wyche, James Watkins, and Benjamin H. Harrison, of whom Edwin, Foster, and Benjamin went to Mississippi Territory with or shortly after the Vicks. Henry Cook, fourth son of William and Elizabeth, married Mary Clark, sister of Sylviah and Elizabeth Clark, and had a son Alexander (died 1820), who also went early to Mississippi Territory and who married Sarah Reece Clarke, daughter of George Clarke.

Foster Cook, Jr. (born 13 May 1787 in Greenville County, Virginia, and died in 1828 in Mississippi), married first, Elizabeth White and had two daughters: Sarah Elizabeth (Sally Betsy), who married, 22 July 1824 at Vicksburg, Mississippi, Charles A. Harris and had descendants in and around Vicksburg, and Polly Clark, who died quite young. His wife lived but a short time and, after her death, he returned to Virginia. There, he married Martha Wyche Sills (born 16 February 1794), daughter of Gray Sills, of Greenville County, Virginia, by his wife Sallie, daughter of Henry and Alice (Scott) Wyche, whom he brought back to Mississippi. They had children: Rev. Edwin Gray (1809-1904), Martha Sylvia, William Foster, James Wyche, Henry Felix, Mary Jane, Benjamin Franklin, Frances Anne, and Foster Tucker Cook. Of these, Judge Henry Felix Cook (born 14 January 1919) married, 21 November 1853, Elizabeth B., youngest daughter of Colonel John Lawson Irwin by his first wife Margaret Elizabeth Mitchell, and had eight children, of whom a daughter Janie married the Rev. Robert Selby, of Hattiesburg, Mississippi, and had five children. In the period from 1818 to 1827, Foster Cook served in Warren County as Justice of the Peace and as County Surveyor. His widow married secondly, Judge James Bland, and had two daughters: Sarah E., who married Robert Howe, and Julia H., who married firstly, J. A. Peale, and secondly, the Rev. J. A. G. Jones.

After his marriage in 1791, the Rev. Newit Vick retained his residence in Southampton County, Virginia, until 1800, when he removed to North Carolina. In 1789, he bought 300 acres of land on the Holly Pond Branch of Cypress Swamp, known as the Burwell Tract, from his brother Burwell Vick, "of Wake Co., N. C." In 1795, he bought from James and Ann Barnes 140 acres on Cypress Swamp, adjoining his own property. In 1796, he and his wife Elizabeth, "of Southampton Co.," sold to James Barnes this latter tract, "whereon said Newit Vick now lives on south side of Cypress Swamp," adjoining the land formerly owned by Burwell Vick. In 1799, still "of Southampton County," they sold to Nancy Barnes 8 acres on the south side of Cypress Swamp. On 26 March 1800, the Rev. Newit Vick appeared in court in Brunswick County as plaintiff against John Rawlings, defendant, in debt, which case was continued to 27 May 1801, when the plaintiff recovered. On 7 December 1801, "Newit Vick and Eliza Vick, his wife, of Hertford Co., N. C." sold to Benjamin Jordans, of Southampton County, Virginia, 300 acres in Southampton County, "whereon my father, William Vick, formerly lived"; and, early in 1802, "Newit Vick and Betsey, his wife, of County of Hertford and State of North Carolina," sold to Thomas Barnes, of Southampton County, Virginia, the 300 acres known as the Burwell Tract. In 1814, "Newit Vick and Elizabeth, his wife, of Warren Co., Mississippi Territory," sold to William Barnes 100 acres where Mary Pope, deceased, formerly lived, whereof "the boundaries here given are in the will of William Vick, Sr., dated 1777," with Burwell Vick signing as a witness.

After four years in North Carolina, Mr. Vick learned of the fertile lands to the westward, to which his brothers had already gone. Shortly after 28 September 1804, on which date his wife Elizabeth Vick was examined in Hertford County, North Carolina, in connection with the 1801 sale of the William Vick land, he journeyed overland with his family to the Tennessee River, near Mussel Shoals, where he purchased a keel boat on which he descended the Tennessee and Mississippi Rivers. In March 1805, he landed on Coles Creek at Selsertown, on the line of Adams and Jefferson Counties, not far from the site of Fayette, Mississippi, where he planted for a number of years.

Mr. Vick found this area already settled. France had controlled the colony from 1699 to 1763, England from 1763 to 1781, and Spain from 1781 to 1798. The Natchez area lay within the zone of Spanish occupancy, but it was claimed by Georgia, which, in 1785, established the County of Bourbon, embracing the present Adams, Jefferson, and Warren Counties and all the surrounding counties, and opened a land office to sell land at not over twenty-five cents an acre. In 1789, Georgia sold tremendous areas of the Mississippi territory to several large land companies, and the validity of the sales was afterwards confirmed by the Supreme Court in the case of Fletcher versus Peck. Meanwhile, negotiations with the Spanish as to boundaries continued, and it was not until 30 March 1798 that Natchez was evacuated by the Spanish and surrendered to General Wilkinson.

By Act of Congress of 7 April 1798, the Territory of Mississippi was created, extending from the Chatahoochie River to the Mississippi, with the northern boundary set at first at a line running due east from the mouth of the Yazoo River, just above the site of Vicksburg, but moved in 1804 to the southern line of Tennessee. In 1803, a Land Office was opened at Washington, in Adams County, which adjudicated claims to a large portion of the lands near the Mississippi River, claimed and occupied in large part by virtue of grants or titles from England, Spain, and the State of Georgia. The commission concluded its labors in 1807, after having recorded 2,090 claims and settling many of the early titles. Among the land owners in the immediate vicinity of the area chosen by Mr. Vick for his home were John Bolls, who had received English grants in 1777 and 1778, and John Ellis, John Stampley, John Cole, Richard Curtis, William Cole, Jacob Stampley, and Abraham Hays, all of whom appear in the District of Villa Gayoso in the Spanish census of 1792, the village of Villa Gayoso being situated on a bluff on the Mississippi River about eighteen miles above Natchez, and all of whom received certificates of title from the Land Office.

Mr. Vick appears as an assignee to 400 acres of land on the South Fork of Coles Creek from John Hamblin (Hamberlin), who is called Juan Hamberling in the 1792 census of the District of Villa Gayoso. This acreage must have been approximate and in French measure, or arpents. At any rate, the records of the United States Land Office show that Newit Vick was issued--

"Certificate B No. 168, being section No. 9 in Township No. 8 in Range No. 1 East of the Basic Meridian, and bounded as follows, Beginning at a post the south west corner, thence North, fifty three chains & sixty three links to a poplar, thence East nineteen chains and thirty one links to a Sassafras, thence North thirty nine minutes West eleven chains & thirty four links to a Prickley ash, thence South eighty six degrees East thirteen chains and twenty six links to a Linden, thence North four degrees and twenty four minutes West Six chains & sixty five links to an ash, thence South eighty nine degrees & thirty Minutes East twenty-four chains and seven links to a Red Oak, thence South forty five minutes East seventy chains & sixty one links to a Red Oak, thence West fifty six chains and fifty links to the place of beginning containing 356.99 Acres the . Apl 1806."

This land was in Jefferson County, northeast of Natchez and some five or six miles from Fayette, and it was here that Mr. Vick was living when the first Methodist Conference in the Territory of Mississippi met at Spring Hill, with Mr. Vick sitting in the Conference as a "local preacher." Prior to this time, Mississippi had belonged to the Tennessee Conference, but outbreak of the War of 1812 had made passage through the Indian nations hazardous. So, in 1812, an annual Conference in Mississippi was authorized. The eight preachers of the Tennessee Conference who were south of the Indian nations gathered at Mr. Vick's commodious home on 1 November 1813 and organized themselves into a quasi-Conference, since they were authorized to transact the usual business of an annual Conference, even though the absence of the bishop prevented the formal organization of a legal Conference. The Conference sessions were held at Mr. Vick's home, and the preaching services were conducted at the Spring Hill Meeting House, about two miles to the southeast. The Mississippi Conference was formally set off at the General Conference at Baltimore in 1816, and the first legal Conference was held late that year near Natchez.

By deed of 2 May 1806, the Rev. Newit Vick bought from Henry Turner for $4,000 a tract of 1000 arpents of land on Fairchilds Creek, about fifteen miles northeast of Natchez and six or seven miles west of his home plantation. This was a tract of land that had been granted by the Spanish Government of Louisiana on 27 September 1788 to Ebenezer Rees and sold by him on 12 August 1800 to Henry Turner, both transactions being recorded 10 October 1800. The deed to Henry Turner called it a "tract of land containing 100 acres french measure, lying on the waters of Fairchild's Creek about 15 miles N.N.E. from the Fort at Natchez." The deed to Newit Vick contained a provision "that should the right and title to the premises hereby conveyed be by any legal means defeated so that the said Newit Vick his heirs Executors and assigns shall not be able to hold the same legally, that then and in that case the said Henry Turner his heirs, Executors, or administrators shall refund to the said Newit Vick his heirs Executors, administrators and assigns ~~interest there~~ the above mentioned consideration money of four thousand dollars with lawful interest thereupon until the day of payment." Thomas Vick and Edward Turner signed the deed as witnesses.

In 1814, the family moved again. Foster Cook, nephew of Elizabeth Clark Vick, had found an Indian clearing about seven miles northeast of the present site of Vicksburg, called "Open Woods" because the Indians, in clearing the land, had burned off the canebrake and most of the timber. This area was about two miles in width and four miles in depth and very nearly level. Foster Cook was the surveyor who ran out the section lines through this area, and he entered the whole tract for four Cook and four Vick families. He himself settled there, and he erected the only public gin and mill in the vicinity, to which seed cotton was brought to be ginned and corn to be ground. His home was a stopping place for many of the notables of the day, and political speeches were frequently made there.

Foster Cook was soon followed to Open Woods by Burwell Vick and then by the Rev. Newit Vick, Hartwell W. Vick, John Cook, Edwin Cook, Alexander Cook, William Vick, Willis B. Vick, Henry J. Vick, John Farrell, Willis Bolls, Richard Hawkins, Joseph Templeton, Samuel Mason, and others, who settled here or in the vicinity.

Preparatory to establishing Warren County in 1809, named for General Joseph Warren, of Bunker Hill fame, United States surveyors laid out townships six miles square, dividing the townships into 36 sections, each one mile square. The United States completed the survey in 1816 and threw the lands open at once to settlement, at the uniform rate of two dollars an acre. In the spring of that year, Martwell W. Vick purchased 375 acres in the Vicksburg area, and a year later he purchased 225 additional acres. During the three years following the opening, lands were taken up by William Vick, Newit Vick, Willis B. Vick, John Lane, and others. In the adjustment, Newit Vick received patents to Sections 19, 20, and 28, T. 16, R. 3 E., covering claims of Anthony Glass, Samuel Ross, and John Birault, who, very likely, had not occupied and improved the land as required for proving prior claims. This was land between Glass Bayou and the National Park Addition on the north and south, extending from the Mississippi River to the site of the High School in Vicksburg. Mr. Vick cleared and cultivated a portion of this land and established quarters for his negroes on the bluff upon the river, near the intersection of the present Belmont and Washington Streets. For his own residence, he selected the site of the old court house square, but he died before he had completed his plan of moving from Open Woods.

Concluding that the site was ideal for a city, Newit Vick began to lay out lots in 1819. His first stake was driven at the corner of lot No. 1, Square 1, on the east side of Washington Street, near Glass Bayou, at the site of the canning factory. This lot he sold to Elijah Rogers on 8 June 1819 for $470.50 (Records of Chancery Clerk, Warren County, Book B, page 1). Vicksburg real estate did not then appear to be too attractive, and no more lots were sold, although Mr. Vick laid out nine squares. Stricken with yellow fever, he drew up his will on 2 August 1819 (Will Book Oct. 25, 1818, to Feb. 25, 1823, Warren Co., page 42). His wife Elizabeth was also stricken with yellow fever, and both died on 5 August 1819, Elizabeth surviving her husband by some twenty minutes. They were both buried in a small burial square at Open Woods, where, before the construction of an airfield on the site in 1942, they lay within a wall under spreading trees several hundred feet north of the present hangars. The trees and the wall have been removed, and the tombstones, after suffering considerable damage, have been restored and laid flush with the ground.

The Rev. Newit Vick divided equally among his wife and his thirteen children his personal estate, which was appraised at $35,662.25, of which 66 slaves accounted for approximately $25,000. To his wife, he left also a life interest in the tract at Open Woods or the tracts near the river, as she might choose, reserving, however, 200 acres on the uppermost tract to be laid off in "town lots at the discretion of my executrix & executors." The real estate was divided among the sons, those parts offered his wife and not chosen by her to go to sons Wesley and William when Wesley became of age and the tract chosen by her to go to son Newit. The property that Martwell had already received was to be considered as a part of his share. Wife Elizabeth, son Martwell, and nephew Willis B. Vick were named executrix and executors. Martwell W. Vick appeared in the Orphan's Court in October 1819 and renounced as executor. Willis B. Vick, Foster Cook, and Henry W. Vick qualified in a bond of $70,000; and Willis B. Vick was granted letters testamentary on 23 November 1819.

Willis B. Vick, feeling that raising cotton was more to the interest of the estate than selling town lots, neglected to carry out this provision of the will, causing dissension within the family. In 1821 he asked to be discharged from his executorship but was refused by the Probate Court. From this refusal, the Rev. John Lane appealed to the Supreme Court of Warren County, which permitted the resignation. So, in October, the Orphan's Court granted letters of administration to Mr. Lane. In 1825, in his capacity as administrator, he deeded to the city for the use of a public building the square that Mr. Vick had chosen for his residence, and here a court house was built.

When Mr. Lane, in 1821, filed a petition to sell 100 town lots to pay estate debts, as provided in the will, John Henderson, Henry Morse, and Ann Vick intervened, and in May 1823 they petitioned for a partition of the town lots among the heirs. The Probate Court ordered a partition, and Mr. Lane appealed to the Supreme Court of Warren County, which sustained the order of partition. The partition was made by commissioners, who, on a plot filed with their report, left Levee Street, later known as the Commons, open to the public. The commissioners appraised the remaining lots and grouped them in parcels, each having an appraised value of $1355 or $1520, and the distribution was entered at the November 1824 term of the Orphans' Court. The parcels were drawn, apparently by lot, as follows:

1 ^o . H. Morse	5 ^o . Ann A. Vick.	9 ^o . Emily Vick.
2 ^o . H. J. Vick.	6 ^o . Martha Vick.	10 ^o . Matilda Vick.
3 ^o . W. F. Vick.	7 ^o . Frewet Vick.	11 ^o . John W. Vick.
4 ^o . Lucy W. Vick.	8 ^o . John Henderson.	12 ^o . John Lane.

Hartwell W. Vick, having already received property from his father and having relinquished, was omitted. Sixty or seventy lots were sold by Mr. Lane to pay estate debts, and his final settlements were filed in 1829.

William and John Wesley Vick, having none of age, set up their public claim to the Commons in 1829, and in 1831 they sold a portion to H. H. Appleby, who brought suit in ejectment to get possession. The City of Vicksburg then, in 1835, filed a bill in the Chancery Court claiming title to the Commons by dedication of the testator and the administrator and by acquiescence of the heirs. Prentiss, Guion, Bodley, and Harrison appeared for the Vick heirs, and Holt and Grayson appeared for the city. Largetant Smith Prentiss bought out the greater part of the interest of the Vick sons in the Commons, and the case became mainly personal to himself. From a decision favorable to the city, an appeal was taken to the State Supreme Court (High Court of Errors and Appeals).

The case went before the higher court twice and, Judges Sharkey and Wright recusing themselves because of previous association with features of the case, Tucker and Trimble were special judges with Judge Smith on the first hearing and Samuel S. Boyd and Thomas Jennings on the second. The decision of the Chancery Court was reversed in 1837, but it was held that the daughters had no interest in the land under the terms of section three of the will, which left the real estate to the sons. The lands thus confirmed in the hands of Prentiss were valued at from $100,000 to $350,000 and he put up buildings worth about $100,000, including a very fine hotel.

Largetant Smith Prentiss had, by decision of the Supreme Court of Mississippi, rescued the Commons from the City of Vicksburg, but, since the title of the daughters had come into the case only collaterally, they decided upon a new attack. The Rev. John Lane, who had moved into Louisiana, and others who had gone to Tennessee, could, as non-residents, bring suit in the United States courts against the parties claiming the Commons. The original question as to whether the Rev. Newit Vick had dedicated the Commons to the city during his lifetime or whether the Rev. John Land, as administrator, had done so under proper authority had been decided against the city. Now, the question was whether Mr. Vick had, in his will, devised the two hundred acres that included the Commons to his sons alone or to all of his heirs. The third clause of the will gave to each of Mr. Vick's daughters an equal share with his sons and his wife of all of his personal estate as they became of age or married "and to my sons one equal part of my personal estate as they became of age, together with all of my lands" when Wesley arrived at the age of twenty-one years. However, the fourth clause set aside two hundred acres to be sold for the payment of estate debts, with a phrase "for the use and benefit of all my heirs" interlined and underscored. "I wish my executors furthermore to remember that the town lots now laid off, or to be laid off on the aforementioned two hundred acres of land, should be sold to pay my just debts or other engagements in preference to any other of my property for the use and benefit of all my heirs."

Accordingly, in 1838 some of the daughters filed their bill on the equity side of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of Mississippi, setting out that, in the administration of the will, after the settlement of all debts and the distribution of property, the Commons were still left and that they were entitled to a partition of them or a sale and a division of the proceeds, and praying for a construction of the will. Prentiss and the other parties made defendants as vendees demurred to the bill, and in June 1842 the Court sustained the demurrer, which alleged that the daughters had no interest under the will, and dismissed the bill.

From this decree, the complainants appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, where they were represented by the Hon. Ben Hardin, of Kentucky, and where Prentiss and his co-defendants were represented by John J. Crittenden. Of the eight Justices of the Court, Story was absent and Nelson had not taken his seat. Of the six who presided, four (McLean, Wayne, Catron, and Daniel) held that the fourth clause entitled the daughters to share equally with the sons in the 200-acre tract, while two (McKinley and Chief Justice Taney) dissented. This decision overruled the demurrer and affirmed the title of the daughters. It settled the estate, but it caused the financial ruin of Prentiss.

The two hundred acres chosen by Mr. Vick for the site of a city was then an almost unbroken canebrake, the cane ranging from ten to thirty feet in height. The survey ranged from the Mississippi River on the north, following the north line of First East Street, running east to the east line of First North Street, and embracing all that tract south to South Street. The Commons lay between Mulberry Street and the river. The town was incorporated by Act of Legislature dated 29 January 1825 under the name of the President and the Selectmen of the Town of Vicksburg. Hartwell W. Vick and Henry Morse were among the selectmen chosen for the year 1825.

The Rev. Newit Vick was a gentleman of the highest probity, possessing the confidence of his neighbors and friends, and was spoken of with the greatest respect by all whom he ever met. He was urged, so it is said, to become a candidate for the governorship, but, not wishing to mix religion and politics, he would not permit his name to go before the convention. A picture appearing over his name in The Vicksburg Evening Post of 11 May 1825 is not one of Newit Vick, but is, according to Newet J. Vick, a picture of John Wesley Vick. The sons of the family were educated at Lexington, Kentucky, and the daughters at the Elizabeth Female Academy, in Adams County, Mississippi.

112. JOHN⁶ VICK; m. Ann -----. He went to N. C. by 1792. In 1794, called "of Nash County, North Carolina," he and his wife Ann sold for 137 pounds to James Pearson 192 acres that he had received from his father in Brunswick Co., Va., in 1792.
113. SARAH⁶ VICK.
114. JONAS⁶ VICK; m. Winefred -----. He was administrator of his father's will. In 1787, he and his wife Winefred sold 100 acres of land to Willis Hall for 70 pounds. In 1792, he was listed on a poll of voters for Representative to the General Assembly. In 1798, he sold 250 acres on Rattlesnake Creek to Samuel Longbottom for $765 ²/₃; John Vick signing as a witness, and a month later he sold 49 ¹/₂ acres adjoining Willis Hall to James Pearson for $132.

Howell Vick inherited 125 acres of land on Beaver Pond Creek. In 1780, he bought 386 acres from his father, and in 1784 he bought from Littleberry Robinson some land on the south side of Beaver Pond Creek, in Brunswick County, Virginia, both his father and his brother signing as witnesses. In 1792, he deeded 192 acres each to his sons John, "of Nash Co., N. C.," and Jonas "for love and affection." In the same year, he was listed at a poll of voters for Representative to the General Assembly. In January 1795, letters of administration were granted to Jonas Vick on the estate of his father. In March, the adult heirs, John, Sarah, Jonas, and Hubbard, brought action in chancery against the minor heirs, Howell, Moses, Lewis, and Isaac, by John Vick, their uncle and guardian, and the court ordered the land sold and the estate divided. In April, the widow Ann Vick laid off dower lands adjoining Hubbard Vick and Nathaniel Woodruff. The inventory showed an estate of $104 16 ¹/₂. 11 ¹/₂ d. The account current, returned and recorded in February 1800 by Jonas Vick, mentioned Hubbard Vick, Edmund Woodruff, Susanna Woodruff, and John Vick. Ann Vick's estate inventoried at $51 11 ¹/₂. 1 d.

122. RITTA⁶ VICK.

John Vick inherited all of his father's lands except 125 acres left to his brother Howell. In 1788, he was exempted from payment of levies during the time he acted as constable of the county. In 1792, he was listed at a poll of voters for Representative to the General Assembly. In 1794, he and his wife sold 104 acres of land to Howell Harriss for 45 pounds. After the death of his brother, he acted in the capacity of guardian to his brother's minor children. In February 1795, he was granted a writ of Ad Quod Damnum with reference to an acre of land belonging to his brother. In April, on his petition, a jury was called to consider the question of John Vick erecting a grist mill on lands of Howell Vick, deceased, on Beaver Pond Creek, and the jury recommended the payment of ten shillings into the estate as damages for one acre. In 1798 and 1799, he mortgaged land. In 1800 he bought some land that had belonged to the estate of his brother, and he and his wife sold 360 acres on the north side of Beaver Pond Creek to Littleberry Robinson and 10 acres to Howell Harriss.

x144. COL. JOHN⁶ WILLIS, b. 1819; m. Annie Ricks.

As a lieutenant colonel, William Willis commanded a battalion of Louisiana militia in the service of the United States, which was stationed on the right bank of the Mississippi River in Concordia Parish, Louisiana, from 25 December 1814 to 31 March 1815, with Willis B. Vick as a major in the battalion. At the time of his death, Colonel Willis was a State Senator from Warren County, Mississippi. He descended from Daniel Willis and his wife Elizabeth, who, early in the eighteenth century, came from England to settle in North Carolina near Cape Fear River, not far from the site of Lumberton. They had a family of five sons and four daughters. Martha P. Willis's holdings were evaluated at $40,000 in the 1850 census of Warren County.

145. HENRY GRAY⁶ VICK, d. 17 May 1859 in a duel at Mobile, Ala., and bur. at Annandale, Miss. At the time of his death, he was engaged to be married to Helen Johnstone, who lived on Annandale Plantation in a 40-room mansion built by her mother, which was never fully completed but which was occupied until it burned in 1926. Near the mansion was a small chapel - The Chapel of The Cross - a brick structure in Gothic style, built and consecrated in 1853 in memory of John T. Johnstone, who had died in 1848, and still a mecca for tourists. Shortly before the wedding, which seems to have been set for 21 May, Henry Vick went to New Orleans, presumably to purchase his wedding raiment. There, in some "billiard saloon," he became engaged in an altercation in which, according to the account published in the Mobile Register of 18 May 1859, he was the challenging party. The principals and their seconds went to Mobile by boat and met at the Bascomb Race Course, near that city. The New Orleans Daily Picayune of 20 May 1859 carried an account of the duel.

"BATTLE HOUSE, MOBILE)
 "May 17, 1858")

As announced to you, already, by telegraph, two young gentlemen, Mr. Stith and Mr. Vick, came over to this city, to day, from New Orleans, to settle an 'affair of honor,' the result of which was the death of the latter. Their original destination was Pass Christian, but circumstances brought them here.

The meeting took place at 11 o'clock, A. M., at the old race course (Bascombe.) The weapons were common Mississippi rifles; distance, forty paces. . . . Mr. Vick won the choice of position; Mr. Stith won the 'word.'

All preliminaries being arranged, and the weapons placed in the hands of the belligerents, the usual command was given.

Each gentleman answered audibly, 'ready.' At the word 'fire!'

Mr. Stith fired, and his antagonist fell instantaneously dead!

The ball took effect immediately under the left cheek, and ranging upward, passed into the brain, where it lodged. The unfortunate victim fell, stiffened himself out, and was dead before his seconds reached him. . . ."

The afternoon edition added: . . .

"The Late Duel at Mobile.—The Mobile Register says:

Justice W. B. Hayden, on Tuesday, held an inquest, at the Bascomb Race Course on the body of Mr. Vick, said to have been killed in the duel on that day by a Mr. Stith. From the evidence adduced, the jury returned a verdict that Mr. Vick came to his death from a gun shot wound in the head, inflicted by some person to them unknown."

A further dispatch identified Mr. Stith: . . .

"The Duel at Mobile.—Mr. Vick, whose death in a duel fought near Mobile has been reported by telegraph and letter, we learn from the Vicksburg True Southron, was a native of that city, in the early morning of life, and the only son of Col. Henry Vick, of Isaquena County. His antagonist, Mr. James Stith, was also of Vicksburg, the son of Commodore Stith, of that city."

The dueling party returned to New Orleans on their boat, leaving the body of Mr. Vick with some friends. We are told that it was packed in charcoal and salt in preparation for the long trip overland to Annandale. It arrived there about midnight and was buried immediately near the chapel, where the grave is marked by a rustic stone cross. Despite the fact that

chapel, she may still be seen, so the story goes, on occasion keeping her tryst with Henry at the chapel.

x146. MARY BULLOCK⁶ VICK; m. Dr. Alonzo Jefferson Phelps.

Colonel Henry William Vick, State Representative in 1826 and State Senator in 1828, 1829, and 1830, was a successful cotton planter who, with Capt. John

Willis, settled land in Washington County, Mississippi, after that county had been formed in 1827 from lands acquired from the Choctaws by the Treaty of Doak's Stand. There had been considerable difficulty experienced by the early planters of cotton in regard to seed. The first seed, obtained from Jamaica, produced good staple, but the plants were attacked by dry rot in 1810 and crops failed. The next seed, obtained from the Cumberland Valley, produced inferior cotton. The third variety was produced from seed brought from Mexico, the first being brought, apparently, to Mississippi by Walter Burling, of Natchez, who, so we are told, found that the export of cotton seed from Mexico was illegal but who was given permission by a jovial and convivial governor to take back to Mississippi all the Mexican dolls he wished. He took the hint, and, from the seed stuffed in Mexican dolls, all present varieties have been developed.

Colonel Vick began making notable experiments in the selection and improvement of cotton seed as early as 1837, working with the Little Brown, or Drab Petit Gulf Mexican. This, with some long-staple cotton brought back from Mexico by Capt. John Willis, revolutionized the cotton industry of the South, production being tripled or quadrupled. M. W. Phillips, of Hinds County, Mississippi, writing in 1849 of the varieties of cotton seen then used, gave much credit to Colonel Vick for his patient perseverance in improving the seed. The improved seed produced cotton up to two inches in length, or staple, and it was this long staple that made the Delta so important in cotton production. The 1850 census of Warren County, Mississippi, evaluated Colonel Vick's holdings at $50,000.

Sarah Pearce, wife of Colonel Henry W. Vick, descended from John Clark, who settled in Virginia as a planter by 1620 and married Hannah, daughter of Sir Dudley Wyatt, knt. Their son Jonathan (born about 1625 and died after 1683), of King and Queen County, Virginia, had, by his wife Mary Byrd, a son John (born about 1660 and died after 1735), a Justice for King and Queen County, who married Eliza, daughter of Captain Jacob Lumpkin (died 1794), a veteran of the Indian wars of 1682. Their son Jonathan Clark (1690-1734) married in 1723 Elizabeth Ann (1701-after 1757), daughter of William Wilson by his wife Lucy (1675-1760), daughter of Giles Rogers (1645-1730) by his wife Rachel Eastham, and was granted land in Caroline County in 1730 and in Albemarle County, Virginia, in 1734, to which latter tract he removed shortly before his death. His son John Clark (1724-1799) married in 1749 his second cousin Anne, daughter of John Rogers by his wife Mary, daughter of William Byrd (1674-1744), of Westover, Charles City County, Virginia, son of William and Mary (Horsmanden) Byrd, of Henrico and Charles City Counties, Virginia, son of John Byrd, of London, who settled in Virginia. They had a son Brig. Gen. Jonathan Clark (born 1 August 1750 and died 25 November 1811), a brother of Brig. Gen. George Rogers Clark (1752-1818), who married firstly, Sarah (born 19 October 1760), daughter of Isaac Hite (1723-1795) by his wife Eleanor Ettinge (1724-1792). Their daughter Sarah married ----- Pearce and had the Sarah Pearce who married Colonel Henry W. Vick.

Through Elizabeth Ann Wilson, wife of Jonathan Clark, the ancestral line goes back to Aaron FitzRoger, a descendant of Sir Tancred de Hauteville (1030-1101). Aaron's son John FitzRoger, who was born at London in 1335, married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Simon Fermaux, and had a son John FitzRoger, who married Elizabeth Shallbrook. Their son John Rogers (ca. 1386-1431) married Agnes Mercaunt and had a son Thomas (1408-1471), whose son Thomas (1436-1489) married secondly, Catherine de Courtenay and had a son John (1485-1531). This John was the father of the Rev. John Rogers, the Martyr, who was born in 1507 and was burned at the stake by Bloody Queen Mary in 1554. His son Bernard Rogers (1543-1585) had a son Thomas (1569-ca. 1613), who, by his wife, a Miss McMurdo, was the father of John Rogers (1607-ca. 1680). This John Rogers married Lucy Iverson and had Giles (1645-1730), who married Rachel Eastham and came to Virginia in 1670 and patented land in what became King and Queen County. He then returned to England for his family, which he brought to Virginia in 1680.

Through the Courtenays, Giles Rogers descended from Edward I, King of England, whose daughter Elizabeth married Humphrey de Bohun (died 1321), 4th Earl of Hereford and Essex. Their daughter Margaret de Bohun married Sir Hugh de Courtenay, 2nd Earl of Devon, K.G., whose son Sir Philip de Courtenay married Anne, daughter of Thomas Wake. Their son Sir Hugh de Courtenay was, by his wife Joane Champerdown, the father of Sir Philip de Courtenay, whose daughter Catherine, by his wife Elizabeth Hungerford, married Thomas Rogers.

Hartwell W. Vick, called a man of fine mind, full of enterprise, but ahead of his time, was the first settler on the site of Vicksburg, its first citizen, its first postmaster, and a member of its first Board of Selectmen, elected in 1825, and he was for a time a Justice of the Peace. The post office had its inception in an Executive Order of 9 February 1824, in which President Monroe established the post office and named Mr. Vick as its postmaster, a position that he held until 2 January 1827, when President Adams commissioned William H. Benton postmaster. The first business house in Vicksburg was established by Hartwell W. Vick and Nicholas Gray, a man of excellent education, but they failed shortly afterwards, largely because of the vicissitudes of the cotton market, and they were succeeded by Foster Cook and George Wyche. Mr. Vick served as a lieutenant in the Mississippi militia. His widow married secondly, William Doss.

The Rev. John Lane descended from Thomas and Ann Lane, whose son William (born 30 August 1740 and died 16 March 1808), of Fairfax County, Virginia, enlisted 7 January 1777 for three years in Capt. Moses Hawkins's company of the 10th Virginia Regiment. In 1762, he married Nancy Allen (1748-1803), a devoted member of the Methodist Church; and in 1791 he removed to Elbert County, Georgia. He had ten children: (1) Thomas (1764-1829), who married Ann Haley in 1800; (2) Allen (born 1766), who married Rebecca -----; (3) William (born 1768), who married Sarah Bailey; (4) Henry (born 1770); (5) Rev. Sampson (1772-1852), D.D., who married his cousin Mary Thomas Allen; (6) Martha (born 1774); (7) Elizabeth (born 1776); (8) a daughter whose name is not of record; (9) another daughter, who may have been the Susan Lane (1780-1856) who married Capt. William Cross; and (10) John.

When his wife died, William Lane broke up his home and went to live with one of his married children, his son John going to another. After spending a year and a half at Franklin College, young John Lane, handsome, modest, well built, and nearly six feet tall, turned to the Church. He was recommended to the South Carolina Conference and, in 1814, was accepted on trial and appointed Junior Preacher to the Bush River Circuit. In 1815, he responded to a call for volunteers for missionary service in Mississippi Territory and was assigned to the Natchez Circuit. After an overland journey of considerable danger and tribulation, he joined in 1816, and at Natchez he helped organize the Mississippi Conference. He was a delegate to the General Conference at Baltimore in 1820.

Feeling it necessary to locate after the sudden deaths of his wife's parents, he located in Vicksburg, where, in addition to his religious duties, he became much engaged in temporal affairs. He became a merchant on a large scale, and he served for years as Judge of the Probate Court of Warren County. He was long a director of the Railroad Bank of Vicksburg, and he administered the estate of the Rev. Newit Vick.

Mr. Lane is called the second Methodist minister of Vicksburg, although the Rev. Newit Vick never served ministerially within the corporate limits of that city. Foster Cook and Newit Vick had erected a neat church in the Open Woods settlement in 1814, where services were held, although Mr. Vick also held services in his own house. Mr. Lane provided for worship in Vicksburg, where, before there was a church, he held services in a blacksmith shop or, like Mr. Vick, in his own home. When, as administrator of Mr. Vick's estate, he laid out the town pursuant to Mr. Vick's desires, he intended to leave the lands along the river, later known as the Commons, for public use, and he thereby laid the foundation for much future litigation.

In 1832, Mr. Lane returned to the Conference and served in the various Circuits surrounding the Warren Circuit. He was for many years President of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College, and he was even longer President of the Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference. Possessed of a soft and melodious voice, he was a persuasive speaker, although no orator. With age, he became somewhat bald and a little corpulent. According to his tombstone: "He came to the Territory of Mississippi a missionary in 1816 and after many years of labor and usefulness was called to his eternal reward."

Dr. Robert Anderson Irion was graduated in 1826 from Transylvania College, where he must have known John Wesley Vick, who was in the preparatory department of the college in the year 1825-26 and whom he must have visited at Vicksburg. After graduating in medicine, Dr. Irion practised for a time in Memphis, Tennessee. In 1832, he removed to Texas, apparently stopping at Vicksburg to leave his daughter with relatives, likely with William Vick, since no mention is made of his first marriage on his monument in Texas. He acquired considerable land in Texas and did some surveying for Col. Ragnet, of Macagdoches, Texas, who had formed a very successful business partnership with Col. William Logan of Vicksburg, Mississippi, in 1832 and who died in 1836.

Dr. Irion was an intimate friend of General Sam Houston and was Secretary of State of the Republic of Texas in 1837-38. In 1840, he married, as his second wife, Anna Ragnet, daughter of Colonel Ragnet, of Nacagdoches, Texas, where he practised medicine until his death. Irion County, Texas, was named after him.

Colonel Henry Morse, a man of elegant manners and a fine mind but not fortunate in business, descended from Anthony Morse and his second wife Ann (?Cox). Anthony Morse (born 9 May 1606 at Marlborough, Wiltshire, England, and died 8 March 1680) brought his family to New England in 1655 and settled at Newbury, Massachusetts. His fifth son Deacon Benjamin Morse (born 28 March 1640 and died after 1707) married Ruth (born in 1648), daughter of William and Ruth (Binford) Sawyer, who came to New England about 1643. Their son Deacon William Morse (1674-1749) married Sarah (born in 1677), daughter of Daniel Merrill (1642-1718), whose father Nathaniel Merrill (died in 1655) emigrated from England to Ipswich, Massachusetts, as early as 1633. Their son Daniel Morse (born in 1697) married firstly, his second cousin Elizabeth (born in 1697), daughter of Ensign Anthony Morse (1663-1710), son of Lieut. Anthony Morse (died in 1677), son of the immigrant Anthony Morse. Their son Nathaniel Morse (1728-1781), of Preston, Connecticut, married Mary (1732-1781), daughter of David Morgan (1700-1768) by his wife Dorothy, daughter of Isaac Lamb, and had a son Major Anthony Morse (1753-1803), who was a drummer in Capt. Ebenezer Webber's company of Minute Men, which marched in response to the Lexington Alarm on 19 April 1775 and who later served in other organizations. By his wife Huldah Taylor (died in 1826), he was the father of Colonel Henry Morse, who, after the War of 1812, moved to Wilkinson County, Mississippi, where he was a trader, and thence to Vicksburg. He was one of the very first merchants in Vicksburg, and when that town was incorporated by Act of Legislature on 9 January 1825, he was elected one of the seven selectmen for the year 1825. Around 1840 he moved to New Orleans, Louisiana.

174. NEWIT VICK⁶ IRWIN, b. 1841 at Vicksburg, Miss.; d. there 1842.

Colonel John Lawson Irwin descended from Thomas Irwin, who emigrated from Northeastern Ireland to America as a member of the household of Andrew McConnell, who was in Augusta County, Virginia, in 1743. Thomas Irwin appears as a tithable in Lunenburg County, Virginia, in 1748 on the first available list of tithables of that county. Here, he married Rebecca (born 1735), daughter of Hugh Lawson, Gent., a descendant of the Lawsons of Brough Hall, England, of ancient lineage. Hugh Lawson, son of John Roger and Mary (McConnell) Lawson, was born in Ulster, Ireland, in 1705, came to America in the George and Anne in 1727, and settled in Chester County, Pennsylvania, where he married Mary, sister of Dr. Charles Moore, of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, in 1729. In 1743, he moved to Augusta County, Virginia, and thence to Lunenburg County, where he was a Justice of the County Court from 1746 to 1756. He finally moved to Rowan County, North Carolina, in 1757 and purchased land on which he died in 1772.

Thomas Irwin moved in 1750 to a part of Anson County, North Carolina, that became later a part of Mecklenburg County; and in 1755 he moved to Spartanburg County, South Carolina. In February 1778, he settled in St. George Parish, Burke County, Georgia, which became a part of Jefferson County. Five sons and a son-in-law served in the Revolutionary War, and he himself joined the 4th South Carolina Regiment of the Continental Line on 12 February 1776. His eldest son Jared Irwin served as a colonel of Georgia troops and later was twice elected governor of Georgia.

Hugh Irwin, second son of Thomas Irwin, was born in North Carolina in 1753, and he served in the 1st South Carolina Regiment of the Continental Line from 16 July 1775. He was paroled at Charleston, South Carolina, after the surrender of that city to the British in 1780; and, for his services, he later received a bounty of 287½ acres of land in Washington County, Georgia, where he married Mary Irvine. In April 1804, he moved to Jefferson County, Mississippi, where he died in the autumn of 1805 and where his wife died in 1821. He had children: (1) Sarah (died before 1821), who married James Bletsoe in January 1805; (2) John Lawson; (3) Reason Whitehead, a Judge of Jefferson County, Mississippi, who married Elizabeth Barnes and is thought to have gone to California during the gold rush; and (4) Alice Moore, who married, 6 November 1821 at Port Gibson, Mississippi, Rev. John Seaton, a Methodist minister, who resigned from the ministry in the early 1840's and is thought to have gone to California with his brother-in-law.

John Lawson Irwin, son of Hugh Irwin, accompanied his parents to Mississippi Territory. He served for a time in the War of 1812 as a second lieutenant in Captain J. Daugherty's company of Mississippi militia in the famous Hind's Dragoons, which saw service at the capture of Pensacola, at the Battle of New Orleans, and in the Creek War in Alabama. He lived on the plantation of his father in Jefferson County until 1832, when he moved to Carroll County, where he was one of the founders of Carrollton. He served several terms in the State Legislature between 1826 and 1837, being in the Senate from 1827 to 1829 and being Speaker of the House in 1837. By his first wife Margaret Elizabeth Mitchell, who died 19 May 1831, he had Children: (1) Mary Philomela, who married William Gray Kendall; (2) W. H.; (3) David, who married Mattie Bridges; (4) Jane Smith, who married Edward F. Gibbs; and (5) Elizabeth, who married, 21 November 1853, Judge Henry Felix Cook and had, among others, Janie, who married Rev. Robert Selby, of Nattiesburg, Mississippi.

Colonel Irwin moved to Vicksburg in 1839 and built his home on land that his wife had inherited from her father's estate. The house originally fronted on Cherry Street, but after it was sold about 1886, it was moved to the rear of the lot, on Monroe Street and Shannon Alley, where it still stands, a fine example of the architecture of its period. During the siege of Vicksburg, it was used as the headquarters of a Louisiana Brigade, the troops camping on the ten acres that surrounded the house, while the family lived with relatives. After the surrender, the family went to Georgia, and the house was occupied by an Illinois cavalry regiment. After the war, the family returned to the home, to find that most of the furniture had disappeared.

Colonel Irwin was a wealthy man, but his estate, which was first administered by John Wesley Vick and then by Benjamin J. Hicks, was involved because of loans. In 1859, his widow Lucy received 160 acres of land due for his services in the War of 1812 under the Act of 3 March 1855; and in 1879 she was granted a pension for his war services. She occupied the house in Vicksburg until 1883, when she moved to Ocean Springs, Mississippi, with the family of her daughter Lucy Vick Shannon.

John Wesley Vick attended Transylvania College in Lexington, Kentucky, where he was in the preparatory department in the year 1825-26, and the University of Virginia, where he was a captain in the Corps of Cadets. After returning home, he bought land at Mount Albion, near Vicksburg, where he planted for a number of years. About 1840, he purchased the land comprising the Anguilla Plantation. Successful in his business operations, he expanded and developed his property so that, at the beginning of the Civil War, he owned 2,400 acres of land, of which about half was then under cultivation, worked by about 200 slaves. He owned other properties, including his Mount Albion plantation and a residence in Vicksburg, and he was the last president and majority stock owner of the original company organized to promote the building of the Memphis & Vicksburg Railroad.

Catherine Ann Barbour, third wife of John Wesley Vick, descended from James Barbour, merchant, who emigrated from Scotland in the seventeenth century and settled in King and Queen County, Virginia. He married ----- Talliaferro and had one son, James Barbour, who was a vestryman in St. Mark's Parish in 1751. By his wife Sarah Todd, he had a son Ambrose, who was presiding judge of the Culpeper County Court in 1764. Ambrose Barbour married Catherine Thomas, and both died in Culpeper County in 1775, Catherine surviving her husband but a short time. Their son Major James Barbour, a major in the War of 1812, married Letitia Green, and was the father of James, Ambrose, Catherine Ann, Martha, and Prof. Lewis G. Barbour.

Letitia Green, wife of Major James Barbour, descended from William Green, an English officer in the bodyguard of William, Prince of Orange. His son Robert Green was born in 1695 in Ireland and died in 1748 in Orange County, Virginia. He married Eleanor Dunn, emigrated with his uncle William Duff, a Quaker, and took up large tracts of land in what became Culpeper County, Virginia. He had seven sons, of whom Duff, the third son, was, by his second wife Anne Willis, the father of Willis. This Willis Green settled on a farm near Danville, Kentucky, about 1778 and married Sarah Reed about 1783. Their daughter Letitia married Major James Barbour.

Dr. Samuel D. McCray, a man of means, came directly from Scotland. Soon after his wife's death, he left Vicksburg with a considerable sum of money that he intended to invest in real estate in Lexington, Kentucky. Some months later, a Masonic order notified the family that he had died suddenly and that he had been buried by the Masons. After the death of Matilda Louisa Vick McCray, her surviving children were raised in the home of her brother Gen. William Vick.

At Commencement at Elizabeth Female Academy on 21 August 1829, Emily Franklin Vick was announced as one of the five honor students of the third class. Her second husband, Hiram O. Anderson, was a commission merchant in New Orleans as early as 1842 and became a member of the firm of Anderson and Metcalf about 1850. In 1852, Emily Franklin Anderson bought a lot fronting 163½ feet on Camp Street and running 163 feet in depth on Second Street, in New Orleans, and erected there a large and imposing house that is still standing. After her husband's death, she took roomers for a number of years. In late 1879 or early 1880, she and her surviving daughter Willie returned to Vicksburg, living with the family of Dr. Harvey Shannon until its removal to Ocean Springs, Mississippi, about 1882 and then with the family of her brother John Wesley Vick. Her niece, Mrs. John George Glover, took over the house in New Orleans until the spring of 1890, when Mrs. Anderson sold it to Mrs. John Gayle Aiken for $12,750. Mr. and Mrs. James William Fee lived here for quite a period, and it appears to have been here that their daughter Laura Jane Glover first met Charles B. Fee.

Colonel John Willis was a cotton planter of Panther Run Plantation. As a captain, he commanded a company called the Vicksburg Southrons, that became Company C in the famous First Mississippi Regiment commanded by Colonel Jefferson Davis in Mexico during the Mexican War in 1846-1847. Henry Felix Cook was a lieutenant in the company and was among the wounded at Monterey in September 1846. Captain Willis brought back from Mexico some long-staple cotton that helped revolutionize the cotton industry in the South by vastly increasing the yield per acre.

A family story says that Mary Elizabeth Vick and Dr. Pleasant Harte Cook became engaged but that, because of family objections to the marriage on account of their relationship, the engagement was canceled and not renewed until after the death of her second husband.

Dr. Pleasant Harte Cook descended from William Cook (died about 1740), of Surry County, Virginia, probably a son of William and Elizabeth Cook, of Surry County. He married Elizabeth ----- and had a son William (died about 1764), who married Elizabeth (born about 1716 and died after 1764), daughter of Colonel William Ryves by his wife Elizabeth, daughter of Benjamin Foster. Their fourth son Henry Cook married Mary Clark, sister of Elizabeth Clark Vick and Sylvia Clark Cook, and had a son Alexander, cousin of Foster Cook, Jr. Alexander Cook (died 1820) married Sarah (Gallie) Reece Clark and settled near Vicksburg, Mississippi.

Sarah Reece Clark descended from Richard Clarke (died in 1697), who moved from Southold, Long Island, to Elizabethtown, New Jersey, about 1678. He married Elizabeth ----- (died in 1724), and their son Joshua Clarke married Abigail ----- and had a son Joshua. Joshua, Jr., had a son Benjamin, who was the father of George Clarke, who inherited a large tract of land in Nansemond County, Virginia, and who married, 7 August 1786 in Greenville County, Virginia, Mary Reece. Their daughter Sarah (Sallie) Reece Clark (died 16 July 1851) married firstly, Alexander Cook and had a son Dr. Pleasant Harte Cook. Of this same family was Abraham Clarke, a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

John George Glover descended from Thomas Glover (died 1619), of Rainhill Parish, county Lancaster, England, tanner, and his wife Margory (1574-1654), daughter of Thomas Deane. Their son Mr. John Glover (1600-1654) married, about 1625, Anna ----- and, with her and their elder children, emigrated to Massachusetts in the Mary and Ann in 1630. Their youngest son, the Rev. Pelatiah Glover (1636-1692), married Hannah, daughter of Captain John Cullick, and settled at Springfield, Massachusetts, as the second minister of that town. His body was exhumed in 1838 when the Western Railroad, from Worcester, Massachusetts, to the New York State line, was so located as to pass through the cemetery, and it was found that the body was perfect in form, having become petrified in the one hundred fifty-six years that it had lain there. His son Mr. Pelatiah Glover (1666-1737) married, in 1686, Hannah (1663-1739), daughter of Cornet Joseph Parsons (ca. 1618-1683), who came to Massachusetts by 1636, by his wife Mary (1620-1712), daughter of Thomas Bliss (ca. 1580-1640), who landed in Boston in 1635, by his wife Margaret Lawrence (ca. 1594-1684). Mary Parsons was tried at Boston in 1656 charged with witchcraft but was acquitted by the Court. Samuel Glover (born in 1706), of Springfield, Massachusetts, youngest son of Mr. Pelatiah Glover, married, in 1749, Joyce (ca. 1712-1774), daughter of Captain Joseph Newcomb (1683-1733), of Edgartown, Massachusetts, by his wife Joyce Butler (ca. 1680-1739). Their son John Glover (1753-1830) served as a lieutenant of Massachusetts troops in the Revolutionary War. He married, in 1778, Mercy (1761-1836), daughter of Benjamin Colton (1722-1808) by his first wife Abiah (1721-1778), daughter of John and Mercy Cooley, and had a son John Joseph Glover (1791-1828), architect, who removed to Natchez, Mississippi, and, in 1820, married Agnes Jane (1801-1882), daughter of George Cammack, of Adams County, Mississippi, and widow of John Larkin. They had children: (1) John George Glover; (2) Mary Massie Glover (1823-1910), who married Thomas Alexander Slaughter Doniphan; and (3) Francis Larkin Glover (born in 1825 and died unmarried in 1856).

283. WILLIAM V.⁷ SHANNON, b. 1878 at Vicksburg, Miss.; d. unm. 1910 of sunstroke in southern Cal. and bur. there. He served in the Army in the Spanish-American War.

Dr. Harvey Shannon was the eldest son of Harvey Shannon by his wife Mary (Towel) Gibbs, daughter of Isaac and Sarah (MacAdams) Towel, of Orange County, North Carolina, and widow of John Gibbs. Graduating in medicine from the University of Atlanta, he practised in Holly Springs, Mississippi, until about 1855, when he removed to Vicksburg. In 1861, he assisted in the formation of Captain Charles Swett's battery of the Warren Light Artillery, becoming its senior first lieutenant and, later, its commanding officer when Captain Swett was assigned to staff duty. With the battery, he saw action at Woodsonville in December 1861, fought at Shiloh in April 1862, was on duty at the siege of Corinth in May 1862, was attached to Hardee's wing in the Kentucky campaign, and took part in all of the battles in which the Army of Tennessee participated. As battery commander in Liddell's Arkansas Brigade, Cleburne's Division, Hardee's Corps, he was commended in General Liddell's report for his good judgment and coolness and for the bravery of the battery. After the battle of 20 September in the Chicamauga campaign, Colonel Gowan, commanding the Arkansas Brigade, reported that he had handled his battery with distinguished skill and gallantry, and Lieutenant Shannon was mentioned in the Roll of Honor. Again, after the battle of Resaca on 14-15 May 1864, he received special commendation for repeated acts of signal gallantry. He was wounded in the Battle of Missionary Ridge in November 1863, twice slightly in the Atlanta campaign in May 1864, and seriously in the left shoulder by a shell fragment at Peachtree Creek, near Atlanta, on 21 July 1864. He was with Johnston's Army in 1865, and the battery was surrendered on 26 April 1865 at Greensboro, North Carolina, where he was paroled.

During the Reconstruction Period in Mississippi following the war, Dr. Shannon took a leading part in the activities leading to the overthrow of the carpet-bag government at Vicksburg and in the suppression of an attempted invasion of that city by armed negroes in 1874. He was one of the organizers and a principal leader of the Tax Payers' League in 1874, which, successful at Vicksburg, spread over the State of Mississippi and finally ousted the carpet-bag and negro regime and restored the State to Democratic control.

His strenuous civic and professional activities and overwork during the yellow-fever epidemic of 1878 at Vicksburg impaired his health, and in 1883 he removed to Ocean Springs, Mississippi. He acquired about 10,000 acres of timber and grazing land in Jackson County and an estate known as Shannondale on Fort Bayou, where he resided. He had become known as an authority on yellow fever, and in 1883, as representative of the State Board of Health, he was successful in preventing the spread of an outbreak of that disease. In 1897, during a yellow-fever epidemic on the Mississippi Coast, he served as a lieutenant in the United States Marine Hospital Service in charge of its Detention and Clearing Camp at Fontainebleau, Mississippi. In 1906, while visiting his daughter Mrs. Charles H. Warwick, at Nashville, Tennessee, he contracted pneumonia and died. His wife also died at the home of Mrs. Warwick, and both she and Dr. Shannon were buried at Nashville.

Capt. Anthony Gathen Medine was a pilot of some of the biggest, fastest packets in the history of steam-boating on the Mississippi River. As a boy, he rode the historic Robert E. Lee when it raced and beat the Natchez in 1870, and he was the pilot of the John H. White, queen of the packet fleet for all time, when it beat the upstream record of the Robert E. Lee to a point below Vicksburg, at which point its owner, Capt. John W. Tobin, declined to carry the trial further or to announce the record made. The John W. White was under another pilot when it burned with the loss of twenty lives and all of its cargo at Blue Store Landing, Pointe Coupee Parish, on 15 December 1886. In the 1890's, Capt. Medine retired from the river and, after a time with Werlein's Music Store, opened the Medine Music Store on Carondelet Street in New Orleans.
